Deforestation has become a major issue in tropical rain forests.

For example, in the Amazon around 17% of the forest has been lost in the last 50 years, mostly due to forest conversion for cattle ranching.

However, even remote areas have been encroached upon when valuable mahogany, gold, and oil are discovered.

Energy from the Sun can be converted into solar power in two ways. The first way involves the use of solar thermal applications that use the Sun's energy to provide direct heat to air or liquid.

Choose...

The second method of obtaining solar power involves the use of photoelectric applications. These applications use photovoltaic cells to convert energy from the Sun into electricity.

Choose...

Solar thermal panels can be used for both residential and larger-scale applications.

Choose...

The cells are considered low-maintenance and well-suited to remote applications using semiconductors like silicon to convert energy from the Sun into electricity.

Deforestation in this region is particularly rampant near more populated areas, roads and rivers.

Deforestation has become a major issue in tropical rain forests.

For example, in the Amazon around 17% of the forest has been lost in the last 50 years, mostly due to forest conversion for cattle ranching.

However, even remote areas have been encroached upon when valuable mahogany, gold, and oil are discovered.
